

Share this: Twitter 1 Facebook 2 More

Like this: Like Loading...

3 thoughts on "Circumnavigating the Tennessee River Valley – part five"

Zoe says:
July 3, 2013 at 12:10 pm

Mustard slaw is such a Memphis thing that I bet the Brooks family might have come from there. I love it too.

Reply

Jonathan says:
July 4, 2013 at 2:53 pm

Percy Sledge eats at Brook's!

Reply

Marie Let's Eat says:
July 4, 2013 at 4:06 pm

The man knows a good song *and* a good meal! Thanks for sharing!

Reply

When I first visited for a weekend with the slaw on the side and a cup of baked beans. Oh, the man is loaded with it in a cramped kitchen room in the back of the building and even a good bit of main street and it completely remarkable. It's served with mustard slaw - punch the sky - which nearly had me falling off my seat. And I don't know what all seems they (the slaw) have become, but you've never had better anywhere.
They also serve hot dogs. I'm looking at Ketchup sauce come in to see for all the night planned to eat it and reach to add a few more. Oh, my heaven, the mustard slaw on a hot dog. I'd never had it before. I don't know how it got there, but it's the best I've ever had.
I was the second to last of the day. More would come if I had more. In the end, the slaw was the best I've ever had. It was the best I've ever had.
I don't know how it got there, but it's the best I've ever had. It was the best I've ever had.
I don't know how it got there, but it's the best I've ever had. It was the best I've ever had.

- Exposition from
- Food and life
- Food Near Nashville
- Georgia's Pecan Hunt
- The Day Review
- Oh, the Places We See!
- Rich Vegetarian
- Roadside Rustic
- Southern Foodways Alliance
- Spontant
- Sweet Tea and Bourbon
- The Boys Make Me Do It
- The Divine Miss Marmy

On Facebook

Marie Let's Eat

Like

153 people like Marie Let's Eat